

RETURN ON DISABILITY

Position: Research Writer
Location: Toronto based firm (global remote opportunity)
Job Type: Full-time
Salary: $75,000 + incentive bonuses

Our Firm...things we do.

Return on Disability was created in 2008 to help companies and governments attract Talent and Customers in the disability market - a population of 1.85 billion people globally. Led by Rich Donovan, a globally recognized expert in this space, we are a data-driven consulting boutique that leverages disability (identity and functionality) to help our clients delight their customers and employees (while complying with global regulations). We help companies adjust their products, customer experience and employee experience. We teach our clients how to embed insights and models into their design process for scale and continuous improvement. Rooted in concepts of Quality, our rigorous independent research process and resulting advisory products are focused on growing revenue and reducing costs, delivering delight.

Our vision is to establish Disability as the #1 emerging market globally.

The Position

As a Research Writer, you will translate complex research-related content into lay terminology for our clients. You should demonstrate strong report writing, organizational, and research skills. You will be responsible for writing, editing, and proofreading reports, proposals, and press releases as well as creating PowerPoint presentations for our clients. You will work collaboratively with the Executive team to produce content for projects related to corporate research, development in digital collateral, digital materials, and webpage content. Ultimately, the successful candidate will be excited by the entrepreneurial challenge of growing an emerging business and the intellectual challenge of evolving world-class original content in a Quality-driven environment. We're looking for someone tech-savvy and data-driven who gets excited about the opportunity to join a quickly growing company and help us build the trust-led narrative.

- Ability to translate research into easily digestible format for broader audiences
- Write, edit, proofread, and format all materials for private client and public dissemination.
- Capability of working independently in the research workflow in a fast-paced environment.
- Knowledge of report technology that integrates text and data into an understandable and beautiful document.
- Streamline robust research and document library rooted in high Quality to maximize efficiency.
- Ensure that all content delivery timelines are met.

What we are looking for

The ideal candidate is an analytical, driven, well-organized individual who has deep experience in writing research reports and creating presentations for clients. You analyze data mined during our insights-gathering processes and deliver reports that will delight our clients. An understanding of the disability experience is an asset, but not required. You are self-motivated and eager to capitalize on the opportunity that growing company represents. Fluency in French is an asset.

- Bachelor's degree or equivalent experience in an analytical environment.
- 5+ years relevant experience as a writer – ideally with research analyst skills.
- Must have expert PowerPoint skills.
- Must have Excellent analytical, communication, and time management skills.
- Must have the ability to work independently with an evolving team.

Reply to:

Jenn Donovan
The Return on Disability Group Inc.; D(if) Labs
100 King Street West, 56th/FI, Toronto, Ontario M5X 1C9
Email: jenn@rod-group.com, website: www.rod-group.com, www.dif-labs.com